CURESEARCH FOR CHILDREN'S CANCER

GIFT ACCEPTANCE POLICY

Thank you for considering a gift to CureSearch. Every gift helps us fund pediatric cancer research and move closer to ending childhood cancer. Our Gift Acceptance Policy helps ensure your generosity is received with care and used as you intend.

Gifts we welcome

- Cash, checks, credit and debit cards, ACH, and online gifts
- Publicly traded securities
- Donor advised fund grants and employer matching gifts
- Qualified charitable distributions from IRAs
- Bequests and beneficiary designations, including wills, trusts, retirement accounts, and life insurance
- Useful goods and donated services that support our programs

Gifts that need a closer look

Gifts such as real estate, closely held business interests, cryptocurrency, vehicles, art, and collectibles are reviewed by our Gift Acceptance Committee. We may ask for appraisals or legal review, and donors are generally responsible for those costs.

Designating your gift

Unrestricted gifts give us the most flexibility to respond to research needs. You are also welcome to designate your gift to a research area or program within our mission. Larger designated gifts are documented in a written gift agreement.

What we cannot accept

To protect our mission, we respectfully decline gifts that violate the law, benefit a specific individual or family, seek to influence research outcomes, or carry unreasonable restrictions or financial risk.

Receipts and tax information

Every online gift receives an email receipt. Written acknowledgment letters are typically sent within 30 days for gifts made by check, ACH, stock, or in-kind donation. For non-cash gifts, we acknowledge what we received but do not assign a value. We encourage you to speak with your own tax or legal advisor, especially for larger or more complex gifts.
